

New York, NY (October 2016) – RSG Media Systems, LLC (RSG Media) recently announced plans to move its corporate office to a state-of-the-art, centrally based location in the heart of midtown Manhattan. The new office will be approximately a quarter of a mile from its current location, also in midtown Manhattan.

"Our goal in finding the new RSG Media home was to find a space which would be collaborative. The new space lends to the culture and optimizes that goal in a convenient midtown location," said Chief Executive Officer, Mukesh Sehgal.

For RSG Media, a technology firm servicing the media and entertainment industry, the new office space means an inspired work environment for creative thought leadership, improved client service, new amenities for employees, and technological advances in the work space.

"We were encouraged to find such a hip and technology friendly space so close to our current office. We sought out to limit the impact that relocation would have on both our clients and our team members. I think we did just that. This location and augmented operational efficiencies will help us continue to grow in the ever evolving media and entertainment technology industry," said Matt Klepac, VP, Marketing.

RSG Media will move in mid-November, at which time RSG Media's new address will be:

450 Lexington Ave. Floor 4 New York, NY 10017

About RSG Media

We are a global leader in delivering software and services that help the world's largest and most successful media companies—cable and broadcast, entertainment, gaming, and publishing firms—maximize revenues from their content and advertising inventories. For more information about RSG Media, visit www.rsgmedia.com.